

ACIFISTS RUN THORNY CHASE FOR THEIR DOVE

"Patriotic Pilgrims" in Decorated Capital Give Cold Shoulder to Advocates of Peace.

SENATOR LODGE PUNCHES JAW

Elderly Statesman From Massachusetts Sends His Constituent Spraying Across Capitol Floor to Prove Himself No "Coward."

(By Associated Press.)—WASHINGTON, April 2.—Pacifists who came to Washington by the thousand today under the guidance of the Emergency Peace Federation to protest to Congress against war had a turbulent time. The capital, bedecked with the national colors and overflowing with patriotic enthusiasm, gave the peace advocates anything but a cordial reception.

On the streets the white arm bands and "We Want Peace" streamers of the visitors drew frequent jeers. At the Capitol, "patriotic pilgrims" from various cities went over the same course as the pacifists, urging members of Congress to uphold the hand of the President and the honor of the nation.

There were various disorders, the most sensational incident of the day following a call at the office of Senator Lodge, the veteran legislator from Massachusetts by a pacifist group from his State. The Senator was called to his door to hear the arguments of the visitors. There were harsh words, and John Brown was exchanged between the Senator and a pacifist named Alexander W. Barnhart, thirty-six years old, born in Switzerland of Swiss-German parents. Senator Lodge sent his antagonist to the floor with a blow to the jaw, while the other force was clearing away the other pacifists, a young man in the corridor pummeling Barnhart vigorously before turning him over for a beating at the hands of David H. Sherman, a half-brown telegraph messenger.

RELEASED ON $1,000 BAIL FOR APPEARANCE TO-DAY

Then the Capitol police approached, and Barnhart, very bloody, was locked up, charged with assault. Later, he was released on $1,000 cash bail for his appearance to-morrow morning in Police Court.

Barnhart for some time has been a promoter and secretary of the Woodrow Wilson Independence League of Massachusetts. He was graduated in 1896 from Princeton University.

As soon as the pacifists began to arrive today they were sent to Capitol Hill by their leaders and told to see the Senators and Representatives from the House and Senate offices. Building it was said with them for several hours. It was during this period that Barnhart and several associates called on the office of Senator Lodge. Among others he said with him was Rev. George L. Parker, of Somerville, Mass.; Rev. P. H. Drake, of Christ Church, Dorchester, Mass.; and Mrs. A. M. Peabody of Cambridge.

Senator Lodge Senator Weeks and others who saw the encounter say Barnhart struck first at the conclusion of a volley of remarks in which Barnhart called the Senator a "coward" and the Senator replied, "You are a liar."

FOREIGN AGENTS AND

GERMAN SPY-ES HEARD Barnhart tonight denied emphatically he had hit Senator Lodge, saying, "I had no idea he was going to strike me."

Excitement over the fight in the Capitol had just died down a little when about a thousand of the peace champions, wearing white arm bands and banners bearing such inscriptions as "Keep Out of War" and "We Want Peace," began to march on the entrance steps of the Capitol for a demonstration. It was remarked that foreign agents were to be heard frequently and sentences in German were spoken more than once.

The police started to clear the broad steps before the demonstration was fairly begun. The pacifists were forced back to the edge of the plaza, the police forming lines to keep them there. About this time "pilgrims of patriotism" and other antipacifists made their appearance on the plaza. The two groups started immediately, and two fist fights were launched. The pacifists were quickly separated, then the antipacifists grouped themselves about the crowd and jeered and hooted.

After an hour, the pacifists assembled at Convention Hall for a business meeting.

The Convention Hall adjoins a National Guard armory, and guardsmen hooded and armed with clubs were posted. The meeting in the hall was interrupted by word that President Wilson was to address the Congress shortly, and the crowd made for the Capitol again. There they stood for about two hours, until it was announced that the President would not appear until 8 o'clock. Arrangements were made for holding at 8 o'clock a mass meeting that had been scheduled for tonight so the delegates could be at the Capitol when the President arrived.

CHARGES STATE DEPARTMENT WITH INCONSISTENCY

The meeting was addressed by several speakers.

Dr. Judah L. Magnes, a New York rabbi, charged the State Department with inconsistency and self-contradiction since the beginning of the war in Europe, and declared the American people did not want to go to war.

Concluding the meeting, Rabbi Magnes asked the audience to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" to show its love of America, which was done in the accompaniment of the band. At the outset of the meeting Dr. Jordan had asked that any person who held anti-American ideals leave the hall. Nobody went out.

A portion of the meeting at the headquarters of the Emergency Peace Federation later in the night, and after threats to wreck the place, it was closed quickly by the police.

The plans of the pacifists were so delayed that their mass-meeting did not meet until just before the President went to the Capitol. Disorder reigned on several occasions, but the police, reinforced by armed national guardsmen, managed to hold the cheering crowd in check.

After several of the addresses had been delivered the meeting adopted a set of resolutions, protesting vigorously against war on the ground that hostilities would fasten upon the country "a militaristic imperialism" and urging the appointment of a joint house commission to settle the issue with Germany.

ELEVENTH-HOUR EFFORT TO INFLUENCE CONGRESS

Pacifist and Antipacifist Pilgrims From Many Sections Besiege Official Washington.

STREET PARADING BARRED

Day Marked by Show of Patriotic Fervor Seldom Equaled in Capital City—Police Reserves Called Out to Check Demonstration.

(By Associated Press.)—WASHINGTON, April 2.—Pacifist and antipacifist pilgrims besieged official Washington to-day in an eleventh-hour effort to influence Congress toward their respective views of impending war with Germany.

Street parading was denied both by police orders, but the program of each called for unorganized sidewalk processions to the Capitol, where Senators and Representatives might be canvassed for their peace or war ideas.

Simultaneously thousands of telegrams from all parts of the country poured in upon the Capitol and the White House, either praying for peace or urging drastic action to uphold American rights and honor.

Flags floated from nearly every window in downtown Washington, from houses in the residential sections, and all automobiles carried red, white and blue banners. Men and women were flags on their coats, and children carried them to school. The day was marked by a show of patriotic fervor seldom equaled in Washington.

Most pacifists came here from New York and other cities under the direction of the Emergency Peace Federation. They arranged a meeting this afternoon to act on resolutions and petitions, and a mass-meeting for tonight. The antipacifists, calling themselves "Pilgrims of Patriotism," came from a number of Eastern cities, marshaled by a New York citizens' committee, to neutralize the effect of the antiwar forces.

"KEEP OUT OF WAR" ON WHITE ARM BANDS

The delegates of pacifists assembled at headquarters of the Emergency Peace Federation, and were furnished with white arm bands bearing in large black letters the inscription, "Keep Out of War."

They were supplied also with cards to admit them to the business and mass-meetings, and the city addresses of their Senators and Representatives. The delegates were instructed to spend the morning calling upon their legislators, and urging them to take no action that would lead to hostilities.

The instruction list handed to each delegate called attention to the fact that both houses would convene at noon, and that they "might be interested in witnessing the opening."

This was taken to mean that the pacifists were expected to be at the Capitol at 12 o'clock.

Antipacifists said they too would be at the Capitol whenever the pacifists planned to be there. They had instructions similar to those of the pacifists, and long before the time set for the opening of Congress the telephone bells rang in the Capitol building.

The plans of the pacifists were so delayed that their mass-meeting did not meet until just before the President went to the Capitol. Disorder reigned on several occasions, but the police, reinforced by armed national guardsmen, managed to hold the cheering crowd in check.

After several of the addresses had been delivered the meeting adopted a set of resolutions, protesting vigorously against war on the ground that hostilities would fasten upon the country "a militaristic imperialism" and urging the appointment of a joint house commission to settle the issue with Germany.

IN HONOR OF AMERICAN DEAD

Solemn Memorial Services Held in Paris for Late Sergeant McConnell and Henry Suckley.

PARIS, April 2.—Solemn memorial services were held today at the American Church of the Holy Trinity for the late Sergeant James R. McConnell, of Cambridge, N. C., and Henry B. Suckley, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., who lost their lives while serving with the French army.

McConnell was a member of the French-American Aviation Corps, and was killed last month in an engagement with a German aviator. Suckley was commander of the second American ambulance at Saloniki, and was killed in Macedonia March 26.

The church was crowded with Americans serving France, or resident here, there being present William G. Sharp, the American ambassador; Paul Rockwell, McConnell's close friend; twenty American aviators in service at the front, half a dozen officers of the American military mission to France, and representatives of the aviation department of the Ministry of War.

The Right Rev. C. H. Brent, Bishop of the Philippines, spoke on the character and devotion of McConnell and Suckley. McConnell's body will be buried in the devastated zone of the German retreat where it fell.

NEW YORK, April 2.—William Howard Taft, returning to New York today, after what he said was the longest and most strenuous journey he has taken since he left the White House, asserted that the people of the South and Southwest are ready for war, and that the United States must enter the conflict "wholeheartedly."

Mr. Taft spoke publicly in eleven cities in nine States from Virginia to Missouri, in behalf of the program of the League to Enforce Peace, and urged upon the people the necessity of preparation for war.

Unless the war continues a year longer, an American army cannot be placed in the trenches of Europe, the former President said, but the government can aid with food supplies, money and credit and with the navy in suppressing submarines.

"The South and Southwest is ready for the conflict with Germany," he said. "This great section of the country, part of which was decided to Mexico by Foreign Secretary Zimmermann, has not an ounce of antiwar spirit. Neither is there any rampant jingoism. The people of the South and Southwest feel that war is inevitable and they are willing to go into it to demand our rights. In fact, they do not want to stay out any longer, and they feel that their battles are being fought by somebody else."

"To talk about anything with the word 'peace' in it in war time—and we are at war now, whether Congress has so declared it or not—might be considered unwelcome, yet I found the people of the South receptive to the program of the League to Enforce Peace when once its double mission, preparation for war and laying the ground work for permanent peace, was explained to them."
